2nd Annual Conference

International Partnerships; Transnational Education

Delivering UK Higher Education Worldwide

Monday 16th April 2012 • Eversheds LLP Headquarters, 1 Wood Street, London EC2

Speakers include:

Professor Christine Ennew

Pro Vice-Chancellor (Internationalisation/ Science); Professor of Marketing, University of Nottingham

Tim Gore OBE

Director of Global Networks and Communities, University of London

Dr Joanna Newman

Director, UK Higher Education International and Europe Unit

Paul Marshall

Chief Executive, Association of Business Schools

"The higher education industry export market is hugely important to the UK economy"

William Hague, Foreign Secretary • 25 January 2012

There are now more students studying for a qualification from a UK university abroad than there are international students in the UK.

The rise of transnational education offers unprecedented international expansion and partnership opportunities to UK Higher Education Institutions (HEIs), whilst presenting fresh challenges in addressing issues of quality assurance and student experience.

Delegates to this conference will hear the implications and opportunities presented by developing markets, new models of learning and the newly established HE Global Integrated Advisory Service, gaining an insight into delivering transnational education, including negotiating and maintaining successful partnerships with overseas institutions.

Live and on-demand on policyreview.tv

Can't get to London? Watch online from as little as £65 per person

Purchase a group licence to achieve significant savings
