Collaboration, Interoperability and Fusion: The Local Perspective

impact on the local community

Droylsden, Hattersley & Clayton

Organised Crime and Communities

- Organised Crime Groups stifle communities
- Many OCGs are based around dynastic families that instil fear among communities
- Need to give communities the confidence to come forward
- Community intelligence – they hold the key
- Feel safe and be safe (perception and reality)
- Success factors and the community

Local to Global: Reducing the Risk from Organised Crime

Recent developments since publication of the national strategy that affect local delivery

- Recognised complexity of structures at the local Level
- Volume of potential partners locally
- Interdependencies of organised criminality at the local level
- OCG oversight and assurance
- Local organised crime can be of national significance

Information about an Organised Criminal

Law Enforcement
(Overt & Covert)

Local Agencies
(LAs, Housing etc.)

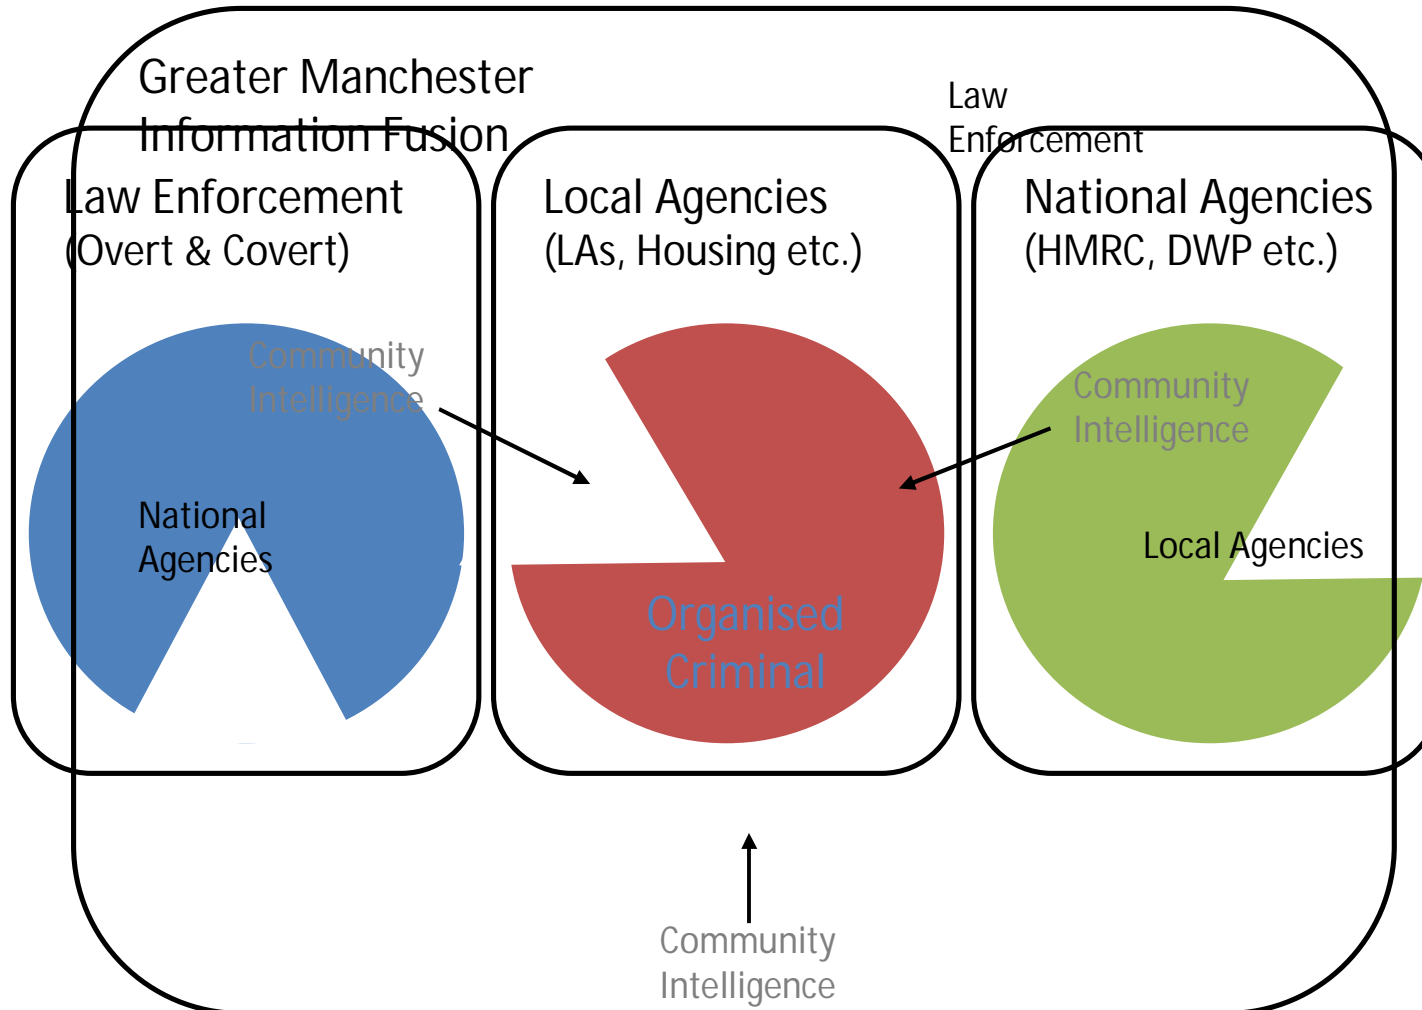

National Agencies
(HMRC, DWP etc.)

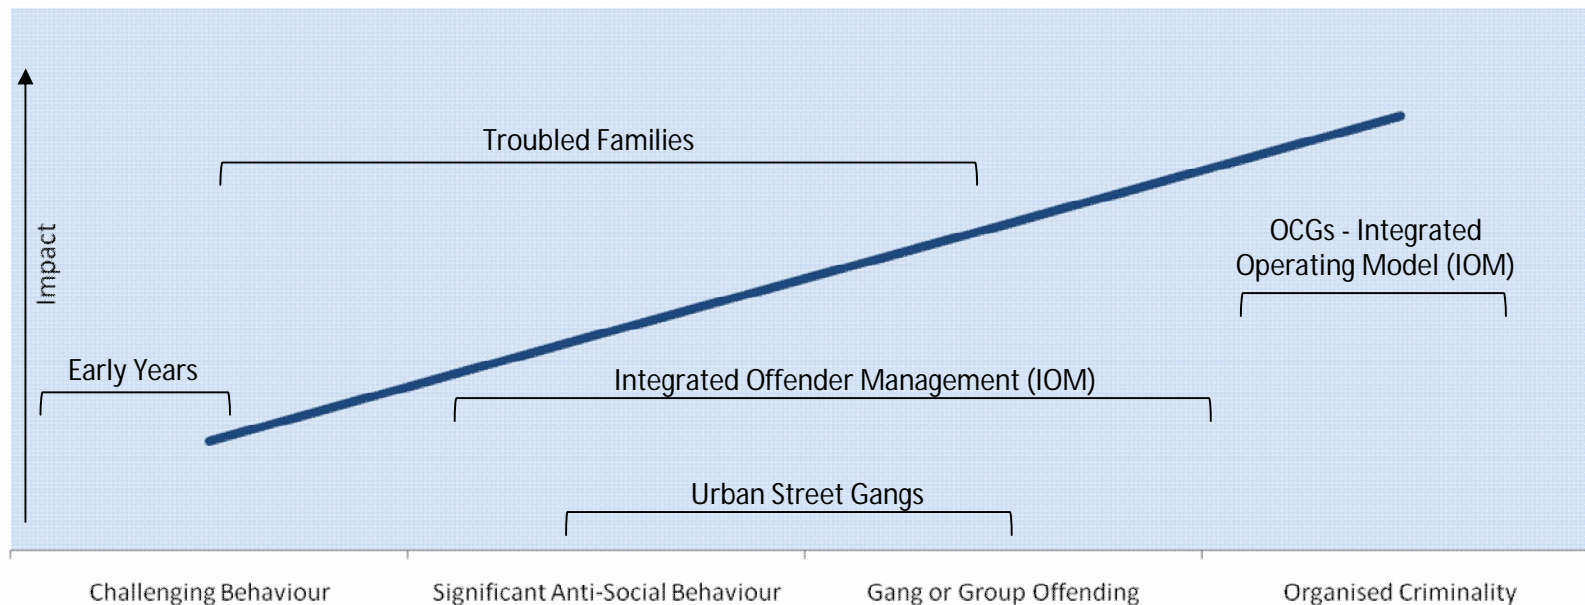

- Viewed in isolation
- Each have some but not all information
- Each have different types of information

Information about an Organised Criminal

Better Understanding the Trajectory and Public Service Reform

- Translation of national programmes at a local level
- Recognition of the importance of Local in the 'Local to Global' approach
- Opportunities around Public Service alignment
- Understanding the impact of organised crime on and in the community

Final Thoughts

- Consideration of a local hub to drive OCG and other integrated activity
- Utilisation and challenge of information sharing platforms
- Links to local communities
- Localism vs. National agenda – Arrival of PCCs
- Learning and opportunities from tragic events
